3rd Annual Black Doctoral Network Conference “Paying It Forward: Transforming Research into Practice” Atlanta, Georgia October 8 – 10, 2015

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Black Doctoral Network Conference Committee is inviting abstract submissions for the 2015 conference themed “Paying It Forward: Transforming Research into Practice.” This year’s conference will bring the concept of “paying it forward” into analytical focus and consider its practical application for academics and professionals. The notion of “paying it forward” is most generally understood as anonymous acts of kindness and generosity that result in a chain of serial reciprocity—acts of kindness are performed for strangers who in turn perform acts of kindness for other strangers beginning a perpetual chain of generalized reciprocity. How can we utilize the concept of “paying it forward” as academics in our respective fields? The goal of this year’s conference is to explore what academics and professionals can do to support the next generation of students, thinkers, and doers, as well as how we can use our expertise for social activism that makes an impact on local, national, or global levels. We ask: What do you do in your work to mentor, support, or engage with other scholars or the general public? How does your research contribute to making an impact in this world? The 2015 Black Doctoral Network Conference will be an interdisciplinary event that brings together academics and professionals from the social sciences, STEM, and humanities to address how we can positively impact and inform each other’s work and engage with our communities. Submission of abstracts from graduate and doctoral students, recent Ph.D. graduates and academic professionals across disciplines are welcome.
